My Happy Place

I'm searching for a place
that makes me feel just right.

A place I'll call my own,
I'll go there day or night.

I'm thinking of a spot,
a hideout from the world.

With room just right for me,
as long as I stay curled.

I'm hunting for a place,
away from all the rush.

Voices in a whisper
and secrets in a hush.

I'm wondering if it's real.
I have to take the chance.

Knowing when I find it,
I'll do a happy dance.

I'm searching for a place
that's cozy, safe and warm.

It's where I want to go whenever there's a storm.

I'm thinking of a space,
the circle of a hug.

Arms that fit me perfectly,
a squeeze so strong and snug.

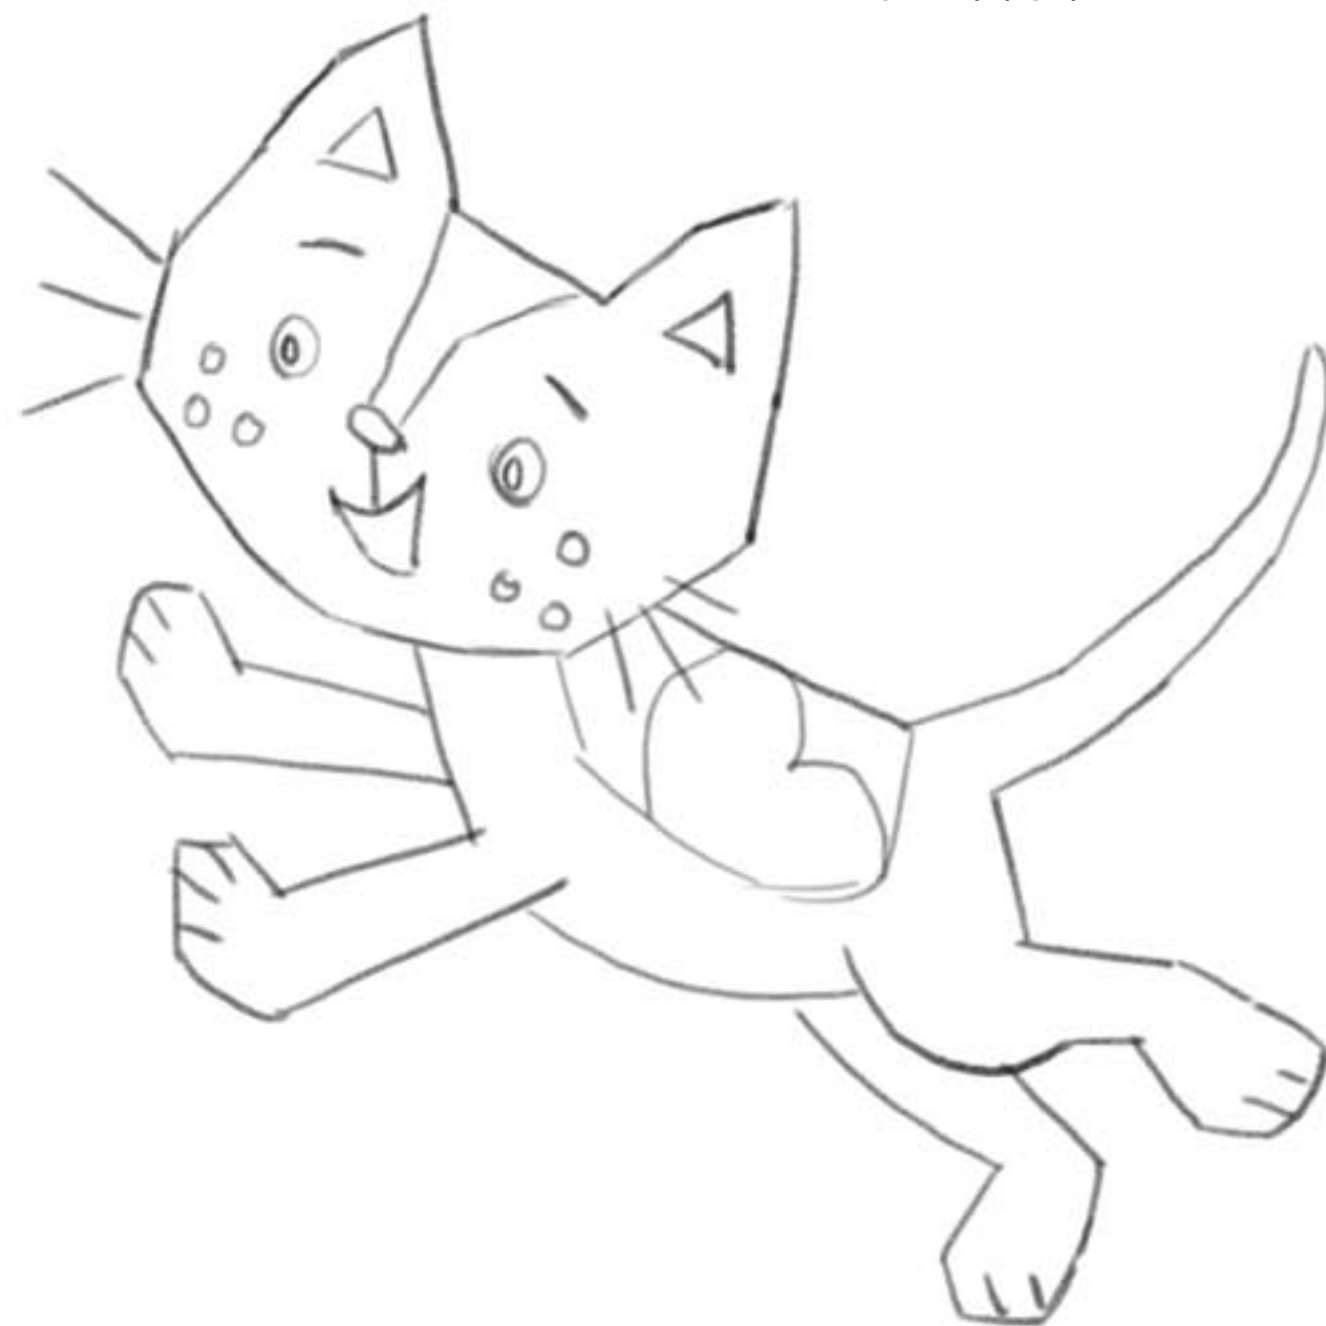

I'm searching high and low,
but any place will do.

I think my happy place...

...is anywhere with you.
